

The Pout-Pout Fish

Read Aloud:

A monologue is a speech that an actor speaks aloud on stage, often to express their thoughts or emotions about a topic, person, or place that is important to them.

The monologue below is said by Pout-Pout Fish. At the beginning of the story, Pout-Pout is known for his fear of the Big, Big Dark. Read the words aloud and with feeling.

At the end of the story, Pout-Pout faces this fears. Read the monologue again, but with your (Pout Pout's) new, brave voice.

Circle the verbs. Underline the adjectives.

Pout-Pout:

How could we possibly have landed on the other side of the Big, Big Dark? No fish has ever crossed it. It's massive! It's terrifying! If that's true, then I would be miles, maybe even LEAGUES away from home.

HEY! AHH! No! Stop that. You get down here this instant! Hey, hey I'm not kidding around. Do you hear me? Get down here now!
